

BACK TO BACK

The Libraries of
Ana Vidigal and Irene Flunser Pimentel

This edition of Departamento begins with a domestic story: two libraries, two ways of organising the world, two systems of thought that have coexisted for more than eighteen years without ever merging – living, as it were, costas com costas, back to back. Geographically separate, the libraries of Ana Vidigal and Irene Flunser Pimentel reveal almost opposite tastes, methods and obsessions. If we borrow the metaphors the pair themselves use to describe their roles – the housekeeper and the night watchman – the contrast becomes immediately apparent. They have never shared books; not one belongs to both. With no apparent overlap between them, they now find themselves unexpectedly brought into proximity.

Around four months ago, due to building works in her home, Irene temporarily moved into Ana's house. Living together became unavoidable, yet the libraries did not migrate. The books remained where they had always been. Even so, Irene kept buying books. Around thirty of them now gather in a corner of the corridor, stacked in small piles on the floor. They do not enter the bedroom. They do not settle in the living room. Nor do they dare cross the threshold of Ana's studio.

The installation of Costas com Costas accepts this difference: the shelves of the cabinet that houses the two libraries respect the organisation of each, as though their respective territories had been preserved intact. (continues on the front...)

DEPARTAMENTO DE ESTUDO DAS BIBLIOTECAS
(PROVISORIAMENTE FECHADO PARA INVENTARIO PERMANENTE)

IRENE FLUNSER PIMENTEL (1950, Lisbon)

is a historian specialised in modern Portuguese history, with particular focus on the Estado Novo and its structures of political repression. Her research has been instrumental in advancing the understanding of the regime's political police, the plenary courts, its women's organisations, and the memory of the Holocaust in Portugal. Her work combines rigorous scholarship with a strong public dimension, contributing to making complex and decisive aspects of Portugal's recent history accessible to wider audiences.

O Departamento de Estudo das Bibliotecas (provisoriamente fechado para inventário eterno) volta a abrir O Armário, móvel que acolheu mais de cinquenta intervenções artísticas organizadas por Benedita Pestana. Agora, com Francisca Portugal, transforma-se temporariamente em biblioteca, revelando obsessões coleccionadas pelos convidados, mapeando a desordem meticulosa de afinidades pessoais, métodos de trabalho e universos de referência.

ANA VIDIGAL (1960, Lisbon)

is a visual artist whose practice, centred on painting, drawing and collage, engages with themes of personal and collective memory, traditional visual culture and literary references. Her work explores questions of identity and the social construction of memory through a poetic and narrative language that combines intimacy, irony and a critical reflection on social structures. Over the course of her career, she has developed an extensive body of work, both in exhibition contexts and through projects of artistic integration in public space.

The image is a technical architectural drawing, likely a cross-section of a building's structural frame. It features a central rectangular area containing text, framed by a complex system of beams, columns, and mechanical components like pulleys and cables. At the bottom, there is a decorative horizontal band with a repeating geometric pattern of circles and lines.

(...continuation of the front) Ana has lived in the same building for more than four decades, beside the Feira da Ladra flea market, which has long served as a vast open-air archive of images. There, she collects photographs and magazines, many dating from the 1960s, which she later incorporates into her paintings through a laborious collage process. Though not a historian, she is a singular archivist of visual survivals, evident in the care with which she preserves, orders and reintroduces these forms within her painterly practice.

It is in her collection that cookbooks and travel guides occasionally appear, hinting at a territory shared by both women: a common field, though archived only by Ana, who gathers these volumes in her library, where they become the material memory of a shared experience – and that may yet find its way into a future painting.

In Irene's library, academic volumes, reference editions and books in several languages predominate, echoing familial and geographical trajectories. These are sources, evidence, counterpoints, the tools that sustain years of research. Yet the selection presented here introduces an element of chance: because of the renovations, the library is currently packed away, and the books on display are drawn from a single box.

Despite their apparent incompatibilities, both operate in relation to the past. Ana produces forms from images that emerge through accumulation and montage; Irene constructs history through the interpretation of traces. Between the rigour of historical inquiry and the freedom of the studio, these two libraries reveal not only distinct working methods, but also different – and unexpectedly complementary – ways of inhabiting the world.

Costas com Costas is therefore, at once, archive and fiction: two ways of organising memory and working with the past that do not reconcile, but remain in a productive tension.
